Identifier:

Electronic cigarettes, also known as e-cigarettes or e-cigs are battery operated devices that are designed to look and feel like an everyday cigarette. The majority of these devices use refillable cartridges that are filled with a liquid that contains flavorings and very harmful chemicals.

Street Names:

E-Cig, E-Cigarette. The process of using electronic cigarettes is called “vaping.”

What’s it Look Like?

Metal devices that are designed to resemble regular cigarettes.

How’s it Used?

Inhaled just like regular cigarettes, the device heats the liquid nicotine, which changes into a flavored vapor.

“Vaping” Marijuana?

Smokers use cannabis in wax or liquid form, and it is impossible to tell what substance the user is “vaping” in public because it’s odorless. This trend is growing rapidly among teens.

Facts About E-Cigarettes

• E-cigarettes contain nicotine, which is highly addictive.

• E-cigarettes also contain harmful, cancer-causing chemicals.

• Oftentimes, the e-cigarette device leaks nicotine on the skin and inside of the mouth, which can cause nicotine poisoning.

• E-cigarettes are so new that the long-term health effects are unknown. There is no proof that the vapor inhaled by users is safe.

“I hear that mixing alcohol and caffeine can really mess up your body.”

“I’m just not in the mood to feel jittery and drunk to walk away.”

“No thanks. I’m driving tonight.”

“That stuff is really dangerous.”

You can simply tell them “No” – no explanation required! If you’re at a party and all your friends are drinking AEDs? Saying no sounds easy in theory, but what can you do if your friends keep pressuring you, however, it helps to prepare a line or two. Try one of these:

How to Say “No” to Alcohol and Energy Drinks

The next day, Tiffany went to her doctor and thankfully, her health began improving. She no longer felt the nausea or the constant pressure on her belly. Tiffany knew she had been raped. All kinds of worries started to creep into her mind. Tiffany knew she needed to talk to someone about what had happened.

She was completely naked and had no idea what to do. She asked Dave if he could pour the wine and suggested they have some before they go out. Tiffany got drunk on purpose. She had always loved a good party. They were going to have fun, just like any other night.

Make your expectations clear. Tell your teen that you don't tolerate drugs and/or legal problems, and poor decisions (such as having sex). A story about a teen who died after taking drugs might be a starting point.

• Do you have any questions for me about drugs?

Ask questions – and listen. Time – or make time: Go to dinner or for a drive. Minimize distractions.

Do you have any questions for me about drugs?

• Drug-related items of clothing, such as "420" t-shirts

• Extreme, sudden weight loss

How can you tell if a teen is on drugs? Here are a few signs at once, though, it's time for a talk.

Who they are – and in most cases, a new hairstyle or a new scar. Keep in mind, though, that all kids go through phases. It's difficult to have a meaningful conversation. But you can try.

5. Sexual assault is not your fault.

4. You should always tell someone you trust where you are going and who you are with.

Where to find help?

• National Institute on Drug Abuse (NIDA):

• Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.):

• The Centres for Disease Control and Prevention:

starting a conversation

You're not dealing with the causes of your stress. You're dealing with the symptoms. It's time to talk to your teen about the dangers of drugs.

Drugs

• Avoid Scare Tactics. Focus on more realistic consequences.

• Discuss the dangers with them. Don't Lecture!

Set aside time today to talk to your teen about the dangers of drugs.

After months of hospitalization and recovery, Nina was finally able to start getting her life back on track. Even though her injuries healed, Nina still had serious pain. She talked to her doctor about her concern regarding painkillers since she had tried them for her chronic pain and while they helped with her pain, she craved it more and more. Her cravings got so intense that she would miss work for days just so she could smoke pot. Nina’s life quickly became much worse, and soon began a downward spiral.

A senior in high school, Nina had the seemingly perfect life. One night, after smoking a couple of joints with the older guys, she made the following statement to her friends: “Let’s order a pizza, Seth. We’ll all pay you back.” Seth knew they probably didn’t need to order a pizza, but he didn’t want to be the one to explain why. Nina was clear: she wanted to smoke. Seth knew she was out with her friends and probably just hanging out, but he didn’t want to risk being the one to have to say no.

Seth’s life was on the lam. He was smoking marijuana, but he was also driving a car. One night, after smoking a couple of joints with the older guys, he was hitting the traffic light, it was green. Still, Seth slowed to a stop because the traffic light was green. At first, the started smoking weed just to feel some kind of acceptance. However, after smoking marijuana for a few months, he started getting paranoid that it would turn to red on him. Seth sat through a whole day with his lights and his horn. Panicking, Seth turned red and he plowed into the side of a truck. Seth was lucky to only have a few scrapes from the wreck, but the driver of the other car was not. Jimmie realized he had a problem but was afraid to go to the doctor to get it checked out. He didn’t want to be the “outsider.” He didn’t have a lot of friends his own age, so he was more sober.

Soon Jimmie realized he had a problem but was afraid to go to the doctor to get it checked out. He didn’t want to be the “outsider.” He didn’t have a lot of friends his own age, so he was more sober. He went on to be a successful college graduate, but his drinking made him feel, so he started to drink on his own outside of parties, and eventually started drinking every day. Say “No” and Mean It!

How did you score on the questions? Were there any that caught you off guard? Use your new knowledge of alcohol to just say no when someone asks if you want to have a drink. You can also try these easy to remember phrases:

• "No thanks. I don’t drink alcohol."
• "I have to drive my friends home later."
• "I haven’t had anything to eat yet, so I know it’ll just mess me up."

Jimmie's story

Jimmie was a senior in high school and had always been a bright student with dreams of going to college. He started drinking alcohol at parties with his friends so he didn't look uncool. After a few parties, Jimmie really liked the way drinking made him feel, so he started to drink on his own.

One night to unwind and relax, Jimmie was drinking and got a little hungry. On the way home, he was going through and simply looked the other way. One of the other vehicles was speeding by him.
True or False?

Do you know the facts about mixing alcohol and caffeine?

Answer the questions below to find out.

1. Mixing alcohol with caffeine makes you less drunk.
   a. True  b. False
2. You aren’t drunk unless you feel drunk.
   a. True  b. False
3. It’s possible to overdose on caffeine.
   a. True  b. False
4. Mixing a depressant with a stimulant cancels out the effect of both.
   a. True  b. False
5. It’s ok to drink an AED if it comes in a can.
   a. True  b. False

Ups and Downs

The Mixed-Up Consequences of Alcohol and Energy Drinks

What do you get when you mix the slow-motion effects of a depressant with a jolt of energy from a stimulant? Answer: A very confused body and mind. You’re drunk, but at the same time, you feel really awake. You might be less coordinated and have a delayed reaction time from the alcohol you just consumed, but the caffeine will make you super-alert and jittery.

You’re experiencing “wide-awake drunk,” which is the feeling that most people get when they drink an alcohol and energy drink combo. This feeling can be deadly – people who drink AEDs don’t feel drunk because of the caffeine, but they’re far from sober, and they’re more likely to take big risks and make bad decisions, such as:

• Drunk driving
• Unprotected sex
• Binge drinking
• Drug use

How to Say “No” to Alcohol and Energy Drinks

Saying no sounds easy in theory, but what can you do if you’re at a party and all your friends are drinking AEDs? You can simply tell them “No” – no explanation required! If your friends keep pressuring you, however, it helps to prepare a line or two. Try one of these:

• “That stuff is really dangerous.”
• “No thanks. I’m driving tonight.”
• “I’m just not in the mood to feel jittery and drunk to night.”
• “I hear that mixing alcohol and caffeine can really mess you up!”

TOBACCO AND YOUR BODY

Tobacco is the cause for all of these awful side effects; don’t let it affect you! Don’t even start using tobacco. It’s just not worth it.

- Foul smelling breath, hair, and clothes, stained teeth
- Yellowish stained teeth, bad breath
- Trouble catching your breath, coughing, sneezing
- Two packs a week would cost $48/month and $624/year.
- Cigarettes, Cigars, Chewing Tobacco, Snuff and Snus

1. What is the main component in tobacco that makes it addictive? a. Arsenic b. Ammonia c. Dopamine d. THC
2.3. Heart attacks and strokes can be caused by tobacco use a. Arsenic b. Ammonia c. Nicotine d. Triglycerides

4. Cigarettes contain poisonous ingredients, such as:
- Ammonia, used in cleaning fluids
- Arsenic, a poison used to kill rats
- Butane, the main ingredient in lighter fluid
- Formaldehyde, used to embalm dead bodies
- Hydrogen Cyanide, poison

- Links to heart disease, cancer, lung cancer, stroke, bladder and pancreas cancer, stomach disease, tooth loss

- Your immune system weakens, your coughing gets worse. Soon it starts with just coughs, wheezing, and asthma. As your immune system weakens, the coughing gets worse. Soon it starts with just coughs, wheezing, and asthma.

- People may not be able to see your black, diseased lungs but they still may be able to hear your heart. Smokeless tobacco is just as deadly as smoking cigarettes or smokeless tobacco.

- Tobacco is the cause for all of these awful side effects; don’t let it affect you! Don’t even start using tobacco. It’s just not worth it.

- The same thing goes for your fingernails. It only takes a few months for your fingernails to turn yellow. This is due to two chemicals will gradually make your fingernails look yellow.

- As you hold the cigarette, bits of tar and other deadly chemicals found in cigarettes or smokeless tobacco can travel throughout your body. Even though your skin is your largest organ, your body focuses on getting as much oxygen as it can to your brain to keep you alive. Smoking damages your blood vessels, which in turn diminishes the amount of oxygen that can travel throughout your body.

- Smoking causes you to have dry, wrinkly skin altogether, your skin is a good indicator whether or not you smoke. Smoking causes you to have dry, wrinkly skin and crusty.

One of the best ways to beat stress is to exercise and stress relief.

Exercise and Stress Relief

• Do something creative—paint, draw, play music or write.

• Relax—take a hot bath or watch a favorite TV show.

• Take time for yourself to do something that you enjoy.

• Breathe deeply and exhale.

• Remember to laugh.

• Practice mindfulness.

• Plan to laugh into the new year.

• Reach out to someone who makes you laugh.

• Smile and laugh with your friends.

• If you can’t laugh about it, talk out your stress.

• Think about what you can do to solve your problem.

• Take a walk in nature.

• Write in your journal.

• Avoid alcohol and tobacco because they want to keep that feeling going.

• Instead of using alcohol, tobacco or other drugs to relax, think of ways to relax in a healthy way.

• When you smoke a cigarette or take a dip of snuff, nicotine travels through your bloodstream and causes your brain to produce chemicals called endorphins. Endorphins create a feeling of enjoyment and reward, but they also produce dependence.

• The “high” you get from drugs and alcohol, this high is not the same as the high you get from exercise.

• When you exercise, your body releases endorphins naturally, so you get the same feeling you would get from using other drugs.

• Exercise is a safe and healthy way to relieve stress.

Facts and Stats of Opiate Use in the United States

- 75% of heroin users started out by abusing prescription opioids. Since Pink is still such a relatively new drug, there isn’t enough data to clarify how many users started with prescription opioids.

- A survey in 2010 revealed that of the 210 million opioid prescriptions filled, 12 million people admitted to abusing opioids by taking them for non-medical reasons.

- Approximately 45,000 people died from opioid overdoses in 2017.

- In the United States is not the only country to have a severe opioid abuse problem. People throughout Europe have also been among the first to ban the drug.

- In 2014, the World Health Organization classified it as an illegal substance, manufacturers can simply tweak the chemical compounds to keep this deadly substance on the streets. As they’re constantly altering the chemicals, you just never know for certain what you’re taking.

Here are a few ways you can reduce your risk of getting stressed out:

• Relax – take a hot bath or watch a favorite TV show
• Do something creative – paint, draw, play music or write
• Talk to a friend about your problems
• Play a video game
• Meditate
• Go for a walk

Instead:

Looking for a few ways to unwind – that don’t involve drugs or busters

Safe and healthy stress

Legal and good for you.

You get from drugs and alcohol, this high is a natural high. Unlike the kind of high you get from exercise. When you exercise, your brain releases endorphins – chemicals that give you a feeling of happiness and energy.

One of the best ways to beat stress is to exercise and stress relief.

Some people think that smoking or chewing tobacco can reduce stress, and you're actually doing serious harm to your body.

When you use tobacco, though, you're just tricking your brain into feeling happy. You're not dealing with the causes of your stress.

When you use tobacco, your body produces a substance called nicotine, which is a drug.

The nicotine in tobacco products creates a false sense of happiness and energy.

Instead of using tobacco, try using other substances that are safe and legal.

Some examples of these substances are:

• Positive life changes – such as planning a wedding or getting ready for college – can cause "good stress.
• KidsHealth: http://www.girlshealth.gov/feelings/
• The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention: http://www.cdc.gov/ feature/smartkids/yourbody/understandingstress.html
• The National Institute on Drug Abuse: http://www.drugabuse.gov/treatment/strategies/treatment-strategies

Be smart, say no to drugs.

If you'd like to learn more about how to handle stress without turning to drugs, tobacco or alcohol, check out a few of these websites:

1. Your body's response to stress is also known as the "fight or flight response."
2. Positive life changes – such as planning a wedding or getting ready for college – can cause "good stress."
3. Prescription drugs are safe to take – even if they don't belong to you.
4. Smoking a cigarette is not a great way to relieve stress.
5. "A runner's high" occurs during exercise, when your brain releases certain chemicals called endorphins.

How to Tell if a Kid’s Abusing Drugs

- Excessive sleeping or changes in sleeping patterns.
- Shows signs of extreme paranoia.
- Suspicious activity around the medicine cabinet, pilfering or looking through things they would not normally be in.

Talking to Your Teen About the Dangers of Prescription Drugs

- Talk about their goals and how prescription drugs can ruin their future.
- Be honest with them. If you’ve used drugs in the past, explain to them how you got hooked, what it was like, and how it affected you.
- Avoid Scare Tactics. Focus on more realistic consequences. Statistics show that teens who know the dangers of prescription drugs will be less likely to take them.
- Discuss the dangers with them. Don’t Lecture!

Statistics show that teens who know the dangers of prescription drugs are less likely to take them. They are more likely to think about the risks and consequences before taking the medicine. They are also more likely to talk to their friends and family about it if they notice that someone is abusing prescription drugs.

“I hear that mixing alcohol and caffeine can really mess you up!”

“I’m just not in the mood to feel jittery and drunk to make bad decisions, to take big risks and far from sober, and AEDs don’t feel drunk because of the caffeine, but they’re that most people get when they drink an alcohol and energy drink.

No thanks.  I’m driving tonight.”

“That stuff is really dangerous.”

A very confused body and mind.  You’re drunk, but at the same time, you feel really awake.  You might be less coordinated and have a delayed reaction time from the alcohol you just consumed, but the caffeine will make you super-alert and nated and have a delayed reaction time from the alcohol you

how to say “no” to alcohol and energy drinks

You can simply tell them “No” – no explanation required!  If you’re at a party and all your friends are drinking AEDs? Saying no sounds easy in theory, but what can you do if your friends keep pressuring you, however, it helps to prepare a line or two.  Try one of these:

You’re experiencing “wide-awake drunk,” which is the feeling that most people get when they drink an alcohol and energy drink.

Drug use

• Binge drinking

• Sex

• Drunk driving

such as:

1.  Mixing alcohol with caffeine makes you less drunk.

2. You aren’t drunk unless you feel drunk.

3. It’s possible to overdose on caffeine.

4. The Mixed-Up Consequences of Alcohol and Energy Drinks

5. It’s ok to drink an AED if it comes in a can.

Do you know the facts about mixing alcohol and caffeine?

Answers:  1. b;  2. b;  3. a;  4. b;  5. b

I'm just not in the mood to feel jittery and drunk to make bad decisions, to take big risks and far from sober, and AEDs don’t feel drunk because of the caffeine, but they’re that most people get when they drink an alcohol and energy drink.
